

The Chief Scout's Gold Award

To gain this Award, the Scout must complete the Outdoor Challenge, plus at least four of the remaining Challenges, plus a personal challenge.

The Personal Challenge

You must discuss and agree with the Scout the level of personal commitment needed. Bear in mind that the activity needs to be challenging to each individual. It is expected that Scouts would normally start the personal challenge six months before they are due to transfer to Explorer Scouts.

The Scout must complete the following three areas:

Area One - Adventure

Take part in a completely new activity or achieve a higher standard in an existing activity.

Area Two - Leadership

Attend at least two Troop Leadership Forum meetings and successfully achieve an action point from one of these meetings.

Area Three - Commitment

Complete an activity that demonstrates personal commitment. This could be:

Community activities: for example, a weekend conservation project, an activity for younger people.

Scouting activities: for example, website design and maintenance, helping with younger Sections.

Hobbies and interests: for example, extra responsibilities in a choir or sports club.
